

A dedication to a man, together with his wife ^{who} helped helped a drug addict overcome a 15 year ~~the~~ addiction to crystal meth, thus helped make her what she is today Everything she always dreamed of.

titled: THANK YOU

Eliot, Sir Eliot

Sometimes you make me angry, but;
It was you who made me whole,
You have given me back my soul!

Ah, and Candice; your better half -
Because of her, today I laugh.
A soul with a smile, I now am
When I use to didn't give a damn

But now I do and now I live
And all the love I have to give is the love you and Candice gave to me
And it ~~is~~ will last me 'til eternity

tho you love me, of this I'm sure;
Your underlying goal was more:
to see my family reunite -
because you love children with all your mind

So, I thank you Eliot, with all my heart
For giving me a brand new start and for giving my children back their mother
we will always love you like no other

Signed; a soul with a smile

Eliot, this might be a corny poem to you but it came from the heart & "Eliot" would not be "Eliot" without Candice, who in my opinion is "the" most beautiful person on earth so this reverending gratitude in my heart is to both of you, of course.

It's just that for some reason the "Eliot, Sir Eliot" popped in my head last night & then a couple of more words, feelings, etc followed so I got up and wrote it down without analyzing wordage like I normally would.

On that note, I am every bit equally grateful to the two of you for all the love you have shown me & my beautiful children.

Really words could NEVER express the beauty of what you & Candice have done.

I love you both

NOW:
FLIP THE PAGE TO READ MY POEM TO YOU

Robin