BOCA RATON — Close Donald Trump friend Mitch Huhem, an entrepreneur and motivational speaker who had seven children, was found dead in his Boca Raton mansion Tuesday night.

Authorities believe Huhem, who was in his 50s, shot himself in the head with a handgun in the garage of his mansion at St. Andrews Country Club.

The Palm Beach County Medical Examiner's Office confirmed Huhem's body was brought in for an autopsy performed early Wednesday. The results have not been made public.

But Palm Beach County Sheriff's Spokeswoman Teri Barbera confirmed investigators believe Huhem committed suicide.

Huhem, who became a self-made millionaire at 26, wrote in his online bio he was the first to get presidential candidate Donald Trump before the public as a business seminar speaker. Huhem got Trump to speak on the topic financial freedom.

He ran a successful seminar company that teaches folks how to become millionaires. A few years back the company, MIT or Millionaires in Training, conducted 1,600 seminars a year in 638 U. S. cities.

Huhem claimed he offered investment advise to presidents, Olympic athletes, celebrities, captains of industry and national heroes.

Huhem specialized in ...
